

Modern Slavery Statement

For the Financial Year ending on 31 December 2022

01 — Business Organisation and Structure

This statement is made by and on behalf of EVBox B.V. (hereinafter referred to as “EVBox”). EVBox is active in the designing, manufacturing, assembling and supplying of charging solutions for electric vehicles and carries on part of its business in the UK. Since 2017, EVBox has been part of the ENGIE group of companies (“ENGIE”, or “Group”). EVBox is headquartered in Amsterdam, Netherlands and has establishments in the EU, UK, and the United States.

Our supply chain involves suppliers providing goods and services in relation to the products and services we offer (direct procurement), to our office needs and to running our business (indirect procurement).

02 — Policies

We are committed to the highest standards of ethical and legal business conduct, and we expect our suppliers to share the same commitment. As part of ENGIE, we adopt ENGIE’s ethics and compliance policies, principles, and commitments, by implementing them at EVBox and adapting them to our business and culture. The Group’s commitment to the respect for human rights, including explicitly the rejection of forced labor, is laid down in a number of key documents, including the following (publicly available via the embedded links):

- Ethics Charter and our Practical Guide to Ethics,
- Code of Conduct in Supplier Relations, and
- Human Rights Referential: commitments and implementation.

Ethics Charter and Practical Guide to Ethics define the four fundamental principles underlying our overall ethical commitments and policies. They provide guidance to help our employees make the right decisions in a range of business practices. Human rights are part of the principle “respecting others” which is defined as “respect for the rights of individuals, for their dignity in all circumstances and for their differences, as well as the respect for cultures”. Taking human rights into account in the exercise of its activities is a fundamental requirement for the Group.

The Code of Conduct in Supplier Relations sets out seven principles we expect our employees to follow in the relationships with suppliers. This includes a commitment to the International Labour Organisation (ILO) conventions on labour rights (e.g., prohibiting child and forced labour, ensuring the safety and wellbeing of workers). We are committed to providing fair working conditions and we expect our suppliers to treat their employees fairly and with dignity.

The Human Rights Referential is a dedicated human rights policy which establishes the Group’s commitments in line with the recommendations of the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights. The commitments include, among others, carrying out business activities while respecting internationally recognized human rights; making sure that the fundamental rights of the employees are respected; rejecting all forms of harassment and violence in the workplace; and including in the contracts with suppliers and partners a provision requiring them to respect the Group’s human rights commitments.

Finally, we have implemented the Ethics Reporting Policy, applicable to all employees across all countries where EVBox has establishments. The Ethics Reporting Policy aims to strengthen the speak-up culture at EVBox and provides employees with information and tools to raise concerns. In addition, we have a Whistleblowing Policy NL, implementing the EU Whistleblowing Directive (adopted in 2021) and applicable to workers in the Netherlands.

Reporting channels. As part of the EVBox’s determination to deepen our commitment to ethics and to provide easy-to-use tools for anyone to report inappropriate situations or those that are not in line with our principles, policies, or current laws and regulations, we have put in place internal reporting channels. In 2021, we implemented a third-party hotline (EthicsPoint), which is accessible by both employees and third parties and allows to report anonymously. Since 2022, the hotline is available in French, Dutch and German languages (in addition to English), making it more accessible for the reporters in different geographical locations.

The 2022 ESG overview highlighting our perspective on the environmental, social, and governance (ESG) matters and including the information on the whistleblowing system and the link to the hotline is available on the EVBox website.

03 — Due Diligence and Risk Assessment

We have dedicated resources within our organization to identify risks and put in place processes and appropriate measures to assess, manage and minimise the risks of modern slavery within our supply chains. These include the CSR (corporate social responsibility) team, Legal and compliance team, Risk management & Internal controls and the departments directly involved in the relationships with suppliers (procurement, product compliance, quality). In 2022, we set up a Governance, Risk and Compliance (GRC) Committee. As part of the GRC Committee activities, we adopted EVBox Risk Management Policy and created the Risk Register, which contains key risks across the organisation, including the compliance risks.

Risk assessment. With regard to our business organization, the EVBox establishments (EU, UK, US) and our Tier 1 supply chain (as described below), we generally consider the country risk low, due to a more limited exposure to the countries where protection against breaches of human rights is limited. Taking into account the type of EVBox business, we also consider the sector risk low. However, we recognise there might be suppliers involving potentially higher risks both in Tier 1 and further down the supply chain. In view of that and taking into consideration the size of our business and available resources, we are gradually enhancing our third-party risk management processes, as described below.

Our workforce. As an employer of highly skilled and predominantly highly qualified talent, the risk of modern slavery within our business is considered low. We exclusively employ in the countries where we have establishments (EU, UK, and US) and do not use any workforce in other locations. Our HR and employment policies and practices are aimed at ensuring fair recruitment, equal opportunities, and a secure working environment for all employees. All candidates undergo the same selection process and are employed under the same terms.

Our supply chain. Our Tier 1 suppliers in direct procurement are located primarily in the EU, UK, USA and Ukraine, with a limited number in China.

Due Diligence. New Tier 1 supplier undergo a supplier selection assessment, which, among other things, includes an assessment of the working conditions and a question regarding human rights and anti-modern slavery actions. We recognise there are suppliers involving potentially higher risk and apply additional measures. For example, recently we have conducted (via a third party) a due diligence of suppliers based in China to ensure their compliance with the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act, and plan to extend this practice to a wider group of suppliers, applying a risk-based approach.

Contractual mechanisms. When establishing relationships with new suppliers, we ensure that each contract includes a commitment to uphold the principles covered by our policies. The Social and Environmental Responsibility Policy of Engie Group is an essential component of our standard supply contracts. This policy mandates that our suppliers guarantee their compliance (and ensure compliance further down the supply chain) with all relevant laws, including those related to human rights, child labour, and forced or compulsory labour for the six years preceding signing the contract with us.

Our standard contract templates also grant EVBox the right to conduct audits in order to verify suppliers' compliance with our policies. If an audit reveals that a supplier has violated our CSR policy, the supplier must promptly take corrective actions and we reserve the right to conduct a subsequent audit. When the second audit shows that the supplier has not implemented any corrective measures, we have the option to terminate the contract.

By offering suppliers the opportunity to rectify non-compliance issues, rather than resorting to a strict punishment in the form of contract termination, we encourage them to improve their operations. This approach effectively contributes to the advancement of working conditions across the industry. At the moment, we do not have resources to specifically audit suppliers other than Tier 1 suppliers.

For the coming period, we are working towards several goals as a company which we believe will strengthen our compliance in the modern slavery space. In 2023, we are adopting a new EVBox Code of Conduct for Suppliers to further strengthen commitments to compliance in our supply chain. Furthermore (and in view of the new Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive and Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence Directive), we have developed a plan to further improve our policies, practices and processes (including risk assessment and due diligence) aimed to enhance the protection of the environment and human rights.

04 — Training

All our new employees complete a compulsory training as part of the onboarding process, which covers topics related to ethical, social and environmental matters. In addition, in 2022 we have conducted 14 company-wide face-to-face training sessions on ethics and compliance covering such topics as ethical principles, reporting and whistleblowing, ethics in business relationships with customers, suppliers and other third parties.

In 2023, we rolled out ethics and compliance trainings in a new video format on Ethics and Code of Conduct (which has a dedicated section on human rights and modern slavery) and Ethics reporting and whistleblowing. In Q3 2023, we are also rolling out a dedicated anti-harassment training. These video trainings are interactive, easy to follow, and contain questions to test the employees' understanding. The courses can be viewed in different languages, making the content more accessible by the EVBox employees in different geographical locations.

In addition to mandatory trainings, we have been raising awareness of ethics and compliance topics and our "speak up" culture and promoting the use of the reporting hotline through awareness campaigns. Through these initiatives we hope to create an environment in which employees will feel comfortable raising issues that they spot in our business, which allows us to constantly improve our company and operations.
